APPENDIX

Purpose of General Licences

General licences are granted under Article 18 of the Wildlife (Northern Ireland) Order 1985 (as amended) by the Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs.

General licences permit authorised persons to carry out actions that would otherwise be illegal, and where the Department considers there is no other satisfactory solution to meet the purpose of each licence. They cover certain types of activity relating to birds, such as preserving public health, protecting crops and preventing the spread of disease. General licences cover situations that are regarded as relatively commonplace and where there is not considered to be any great conservation impact.

General licences avoid the need for people to apply for individual licences for these specific circumstances. General licences are still subject to strict conditions, and abuse of them or failure to comply with the conditions could constitute an offence.

Application of General Licences

General licences apply to the whole of Northern Ireland.

They are issued annually and unless revoked, are valid for the calendar year, excepting Licence TPG3 for the conservation of wild birds which is restricted to use in the breeding season between 1 March and 31 August.

General licences cannot be used on Sundays or during the period commencing one hour after sunset on any day and ending one hour before sunrise on the next day.

All general licences are subject to certain conditions of use. If you plan to act under the authority of a general licence, you must:

- be eligible to do so (see conditions of each licence)
- comply with the terms of the relevant licence and therefore the law

These licences do not give any right of access or right to take action to otherwise unauthorised persons. You should read a copy of the relevant licence in addition to the information below before undertaking any action.

Failure to comply with the terms of the licence may mean you commit a criminal offence under the Wildlife Order and shall be liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 6 months, or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or to both.

Use of General Licences on Protected Sites

While General Licences are valid for use across Northern Ireland, anyone intending to use them on designated sites in Northern Ireland, ie, ASSIs, (Areas of Special Scientific Interest) SPAs (Special Protection Areas) or SACs (Special Areas of Conservation) must ensure that such use does not engage with the schedule of damaging operations or activities listed for each site. Where a listed operation or activity is proposed to take place, written consent must be sought from the Department. Locations of all ASSIs, SPAs and SACs together with further information on each site can be accessed on the following link –

Anyone intending to use a general licence is reminded of the statutory legal position in relation to the disturbance of all nesting birds.

Article 4 (6) of the Wildlife (Northern Ireland) Order 1985 states –

‘Subject to the provisions of this Part, if any person intentionally, or recklessly

(a) disturbs any wild bird while it is building a nest or is in, or near a nest containing eggs or young; or

(b) disturbs dependent young of such a bird.

he shall be guilty of an offence.’

If you unexpectedly disturb nesting birds, you should stop the activity and ensure disturbance is prevented from occurring again.

Methods

Licence users should assess alternative, lawful non-lethal methods to achieving the purpose of each licence, including audible and visual deterrents, and exclusion measures. Anyone intending to act under a general licence should first consider these alternatives, but it is recognised that these will not be practical, effective or proportionate for all situations.

The general licences allow a range of control activities, including but not restricted to pricking eggs, oiling eggs, removing eggs and nests, shooting birds and falconry. Licence users should be aware of the prohibited methods of killing or taking wild birds detailed in Article 6(1) of the Wildlife Order, and that use of such a method constitutes an offence.<sup>1</sup>

It is expected that the licence user should employ the method that has the least welfare impact to achieve the purpose of the licence. Those birds killed must be dispatched in a humane and timely manner.
